1 a) The civil nuclear co-operation between India and France is in many ways a landmark agreement because it ended 16 years of nuclear supply fuel exclusion imposed on India by NSG. Secondly, it is the first time that the ~~as~~ a member of the NSG has signed up the nuclear agreement ~~heavily~~ with a country (India) not signatory of NPT. Thirdly, it is the first such agreement that India has been entering with a member of NSG since Indo-US nuclear deal.

The various agreed facets of the agreement include:

- (a) India will get nuclear fuel for civilian use.
- (b) Technology towards maintenance of civil plants
- (c) Technology towards total fuel cycle management
- (d) Technology towards prevention of radiation and environment protection from the perspective of nuclear radiation.
- (e) Nuclear waste disposal technology.

It has great impact on India's quest towards energy security and sustainable development because: with the depleting of fossil fuel and the variability of oil price, the need is to diversify energy scenario. So one such attempt is the reliance on nuclear energy, which has great potential in India. But due to lack of uranium and other high grade fuel resources nuclear power is not well developed. With this agreement, Indian civil nuclear plants will be able to receive enough quality and quantity of fuel which will resolve energy crisis to large extent.

The present drive towards economic development adopted by the developing countries is to spread out the economic development throughout the geography. This has resulted in balanced growth but has not been very successful.

The best path of development would be concentrating developing activities in economically and geographically middle places. Then the policy decision should be economic integration. The geographies should be local level-national level and international level.

This will result in unbalanced development but development, nevertheless will be inclusive. The government plays a major role in mobilizing people towards economic development. The above idea is based on Paul Krugman's idea of economic theory.

8 a) The new world order and India's position therein can be studied from the following grounds:-

(a) political influence:-

It is the largest and one of the most successful democracies in the world. India has actively taken part in various international political blocks. To name a few, India is an active member of G5, G20, BRIC, SAARC and NAM; also has observer status in SCO and ASEAN. India's ~~concern~~ presence in the international forums has been credible and that's why India has been demanding a seat in the UN security council.

(b) economic influence:-

India has a major role to play in the present economic crisis because of its large economy which has shown 7% positive growth. As a member of G8+5 India has called for reforms and democratization of IMF. India's economic might is evident when various Indian business concerns are on a buying spree worldwide; for example Tata buying Corus, Jaguar and Land-Rover, Mittal buying Arcelor etc.

(c) Miscellaneous issues:-

- (i) Despite being a non-signatory to NPT, India became the first country to get a waiver from NSG and can receive nuclear fuel and nuclear technology.
- (ii) India's fight against terrorism has been accepted by developed nations.

- 16) Ethnic problem in Sri Lanka is the ethnic clash between the Tamil minorities under the militant LTTE and the government of Sri Lanka.

Don't Write

(इस हासिये में कुछ

Background of the conflict :-

The Tamils in Sri Lanka are a minority community who are socially, economically and politically deprived. The situation became worse when the Sri Lankan government made Sinhalese the state language and Buddhism the state religion. Continuous deprivation of all spheres has resulted in the Tamil minority organize themselves on the line of a militant organization and carry out acts of sabotage. The militant wing LTTE occupies the Jaffna province of Sri Lanka, had a strong army, strong navy and a rudimentary air force also.

Recent happenings :-

After the end of cease fire agreement Sri Lankan army attacked decisive blow to LTTE. With the death of Prabhakaran LTTE has all but disappeared from Sri Lanka. However this war has been hailed as one of the greatest attack on the human rights with thousands of innocent people had to suffer for being residing in the war zone.

India's stand on the issue :-

have been leveraged by India as a deterrent for Sri Lanka's close alliance with the USA during the 1970s.

In fact India has sent out International peace keeping force (IPKF) to Sri Lanka. This measure has been greatly criticized as India had to suffer a lot militarily. In 1989 the IPKF was withdrawn. LTTE carried out suicidal bomb attack on Rajiv Gandhi.

Q) India and Pakistan are two nuclear powers in South Asia. So close and friendly relationship between the two nations is cooperative for the safety and security of the South Asian region. But there are many hurdles for the close co-operation between India and Pakistan. The main major issues include:

- (i) cross border terrorism
- (ii) counterfeit currency smuggling
- (iii) narcotic smuggle across the border.

Cross border terrorism is the biggest hindrance in India-Pakistan ties. The attack on Parliament and the recent Mumbai attack has been carried out by militants from Pakistan. Earlier in the Kargil war, there was direct involvement of the Pakistan army. The Islamist terrorist groups operating in Kashmir are based in the Pakistan occupied Kashmir area. Despite international pressure Pakistan has not taken any major step towards this.

Similarly cross border narcotic smuggling and counterfeit currency has been one of the biggest issues that has created problems in India-Pakistan relationship.

The recently released Indo-Pak joint statement is known as Sharm-El-Sheikh joint statement. The highlights are:-

- (a) India has given more evidence regarding the Pak involvement of Pakistani militant groups in the recent Mumbai attack. Pakistan has asked for some more evidence and sent out a dossier to India which is being reviewed.
- (b) Pakistan has raised some apprehensions regarding extremist activities in the Balochistan area. Government of India has agreed to include the Balochistan issue in the bilateral talks.
- (c) Both India has been pressing for non-inclusion of terrorism in the composite discussions.
- (d) Both countries agreed to the fact that bilateral talks are the only way to resolve the problems.

Before this joint statement, the Narcotic Bureau of India and Narcotic control authority of Pakistan have agreed to act in tandem to combat cross border narcotics smuggling. There will be foreign secretary level meetings after which ministerial level meetings will be finalized. No proposal for visa liberalization.

BRIC is the acronym for a group of countries that include Brazil, Russia, India and China.

In the present world order the BRIC countries have an important role to play because:

- (i) These countries are very large countries with half of the world population. They contribute for the 42% of the world trade annually. They are emerging economies with large consumer base.
 - (ii) Secondly, three out of the four countries are nuclear powers. They have very strong economies for example in the present economic turmoil also China and India have shown positive growth of GDP.
 - (iii) 2 of the countries are the members of United Nations security council and India and Brazil are supporting each other's cause.
 - (iv) The importance of BRIC has come into fore when Brazil, Russia and China wanted to convert $70 billion currency held at IMF to be converted into multi-currency bonds. They are also demanding to include Russian Ruble and Chinese Yuan into the basket of currencies of IMF. Many theorists see this as an attempt to replace US dollar as the most powerful currency.
 - (v) BRIC countries have asked for reorganization of international financial organizations, democratization of their working process.
 - (vi) They have taken stand on climate issues, food securities and present economic crisis.
- So BRIC countries have a major role to play in the new world order.

4a)

Naxalism is the militant agrarian movement that occurred in the Naxalbari village in West Bengal during 1960s. what started as a few agrarian movement spread all over the India under the veil of many communist militant organizations.

Factors for the rise of naxalism in India:-

• During the early phases of naxalite struggle the main reason was land. The land holders have used oppressive measures towards the tenant tenants so they have organized in militant groups under the leadership of Charan Mazumdar, Kanu Sanyal, Pernjab Rao etc.

But the present naxalite movements more specifically known as Maoist movements (which have spread in Orissa, AP, Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh, MP and Maharashtra) has a different reason. In those areas large tracts of tribal land has been occupied by the non-tribals. So the tribals feel deprived economically, politically and socially. These deprived tribal groups are mobilized by the naxalite leaders or Maoist leaders to carry out acts of sabotage on the government properties and on the non-tribal bourgeoisie. In certain areas like Narayan Patna in Orissa, they have occupied the land of the non-tribals forcibly and distributed among the tribals. So today in most of the cases, naxalite struggle has become a ethnic struggle between the tribals and non-tribals.

Naxalite movement may not be a threat to the security of the nation. Though there are apprehensions that Indian Maoist groups are getting support from foreign countries, no concrete evidence have been received so far. Besides, the go if in case it becomes a threat to national security, government can take stringent measures to curb it as did AP government with the introduction of COBRA forces.

However, Naxalism is definitely a law and order problem and in many times the naxalite leaders indulge in human rights violation activities. So naxalism has to be controlled and for this ~~not~~ dialogues with the deprived groups can be critical. Government should take steps to remove the feeling of deprivation among the tribals by providing them avenues of employment and empowerment.

8 c) India Russia has been a long standing ally of India. After the end of cold war and with India's close relationship with the USA, India and Russia relations have been strained a bit. But of lately, India and Russia have tried to normalizing enhance the friendly relationship.

→ In the political sphere :-

- (a) India has been a major partner in the BRIC
- (b) Russia has championed a greater role of India as an observer in the SCO summit.
The Indian PM's visit to SCO summit is seen as a diplomatic victory for both Russia and India.
- (c) Russia is also sympathetic for India's demand in the United Nations' recently council.

→ Nuclear co-operation :-

Russia is one of the first countries to sign a nuclear co-operation treaty with India after the Indo-US nuclear deal.

→ Co-operation in defence :-

(a) Russian defence equipment have enriched the Indian defence system. India has recently signed a treaty to get Akula class submarine technology.

(b) India and Russia have jointly developed the BrahMos missiles.

(c) India is ready to receive the Lohgarh aircraft carrier and aircraft.

→ Co-operation in science and technology :-

India and Russia will jointly co-operate in the Chandrayaan-II mission.

In the present economic turmoil the role of Russia and China have India have increased a lot with respect to the new world order. So a healthy relationship between the two is imperative.

8 b) Indo-US defense co-operation has enshrined a new era of Indo-US relationship. This is so because during the cold war time USA perceived India as a potential adversary. The various military treaties of USA (in Asia) like CENTO and SEATO has excluded India. So such a breakthrough India-US defense co-operation becomes a major event in the bilateral relation between the two countries.

The defence co-operation can be studied from the following perspectives:

-  Joint military exercises
- Exchange of staff
- <c> Purchase of military hardware
- <d> joint research and development.

 Joint military exercises:-

Steps have been taken for increased frequency of joint military exercises. in Navy. Malabar 2009 was the joint naval exercise of US Navy, Indian Navy and Japanese Navy.

Steps have been taken up for air force joint exercises and army joint exercises.

 Exchange of staff :-

Visit of US chief of air force and Indian chief of air force to India and USA respectively have increased the scope of defense collaboration.

India has agreed to have an American aircraft flying instruction in Airforce training academy Dundigal and the USA has agreed to station an Indian instructor in US airforce training academy.

<c> Purchase of military hardware :-

India has shown interest to purchase military hardware from the USA. India is hoping to get state of the art technology especially in aircraft technology and third generation anti-tank technology.

<d> joint-research and development :-

Indian defence firms like BEL, DRDO etc. have taken some steps to carry out research in collaboration with the US firms.

The Indo-US ~~military~~ defence co-operation has ushered a new era of bilateral relationship between the two countries.
